Landon Says Midwest Favors Cash-and-Carry Arms Sales

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP)—Alf M. Landon, Republican leader, arrived for President Roosevelt's neutrality conference today and promptly urged a continuous Congress during the European war because "there is more confidence in the united judgment of the representatives than in any one man's opinion."

The 1936 Republican presidential candidate declined at a press conference to take a stand on the question of repealing the arms embargo provision of the present neutrality law—a course opposed by such Republicans as Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and Senator of Idaho.

Landon did tell newsmen surrounding him in his hotel room that there was a strong mid-west sentiment for adoption of a cash-and-carry system of exports to belligerents. Under this system, purchases would be required to pay cash and transport their purchases in other than American ships. But the former Kansas governor would not say whether he favored including arms and ammunition in such a policy.

Frank Discussion

Prior to the White House meeting, Stephen Early, press secretary, told reporters Mr. Roosevelt was "disposed to have a very free and frank discussion" of neutrality with the congressional and political leaders summoned to an afternoon conference.

"There is a definite feeling," Landon said, "that Congress should stay in session. There is more confidence in the united judgment of the representatives than in any one man's opinion. So much depends on the slender thread of incidents that we want Congress to stay in session."

Landon said he intended to emphasize this point in discussion with the President if given an opportunity.

The 1936 Republican presidential nominee also declared that sentiment in the middle west, and as disclosed in mail he has received, appeared to be "very strong" for an extension of the cash-and-carry method of sales to belligerent nations. He declined, however, to say whether he was in favor of including arms, now embargoed, in such sales.

Interesting Shift

There had been a "very interesting shift" in sentiment in the last two weeks, Landon said, from a "fatalistic conviction that we would get into the war in the end."

"There has been a definite shift in the last two weeks that we are not going to get into it," Landon told newsmen who assembled in his hotel suite for an informal press conference. "The yardstick by which we are measuring everything now is whether it is going to keep us out of war."

Early said the President's neutrality address to Congress tomorrow probably would be about 2,000 words.

Mr. Roosevelt remained in his White House study to plan for his afternoon conference and work on his address.

He had no appointments, aside from the conference, although White House officials said that if any of the men here for that requested to see the President individually ahead of time, arrangements would be made.

Asked about the attitude in the middle west in relation to repeal of the arms embargo, Landon said he found "families are divided on it just as you find political parties divided."

As to sentiment for repealing the entire neutrality law, thus placing this country's dependence on international law, Landon said he found such sentiment usually was coupled with the belief that there should be some form of cash and carry legislation to protect this country.

Landon was closed with House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts and Eugene Meyer, Washington publisher, before the press conference. He had conferred with Senate Minority Leader McNary of Oregon on the train en route to Washington.

Liverpool, England, Sept. 20 (AP)—Survivors from the 4,060-ton Furness cargo steamer Aviemore reported today the vessel was sunk by a submarine last week. Eleven survivors of the crew of 40 were landed here Monday.

Italy Assumes Lead Over Neutrality Bloc

Rome Sources Say Nation Feels It Should Undertake Role of Guiding Southern Europe, but No Pact Is Expected

(By The Associated Press)

Reports from Balkan capitals and tightening Italian-Spanish relations indicated today Italy gradually is assuming leadership of a neutral bloc extending from the Black Sea to the Atlantic Ocean.

In Rome, authoritative sources said it was only natural that Italy, as the most powerful European neutral, should undertake the role of guiding southern Europe.

Observers expressed doubt, however, any formal pact would result.

The neutral bloc was described as merely "an unwritten community of interests," with Italy the frontal nation in close diplomatic relationship with Spain, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania and Greece.

No Involvement Planned

Although continuing preparations for possible war, Italy gave evidence she has no idea of involving herself in the near future. Italian ships were reported on all seas.

While Generalissimo Franco of Spain has called off a scheduled visit to Rome this month, Fascist officials suggested that Franco and Premier Mussolini were keeping in close touch. There was a belief Franco might visit Rome in November.

In Belgrade, negotiations for recognition of Soviet Russia by Yugoslavia and conclusion of a nonaggression pact were reported reliably under way. Hitherto, Yugoslavia and Russia have not had diplomatic relations.

Baltic States Concerned

The Baltic states were concerned by reports from Tallinn that the Russian navy had blockaded the coast of Estonia.

Despite Russia's assurances of neutrality, there were indications she intends to dominate the North Baltic, where she is said to want an ice-free port.

Representatives of five northern neutrals ended a two-day conference at Copenhagen last night with a joint declaration of their intention to remain neutral and uphold their rights to trade with all countries. Represented were Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland and Iceland.

The Copenhagen newspaper Berlingske Tidende said British sources believe it is only a question of time before Estonia and Latvia will be incorporated in the Soviet.

Private property and of privately owned public service corporations has been largely restored at a cost of untold millions of dollars.

Suspect Is Taken By Arizona Police

Man Is Accused of Theft of Bridge Toll Funds by Jersey Officials

Flagstaff, Ariz., Sept. 20 (AP)—A man Sheriff Arthur Vandevier said had been identified as Alfred Westbrook, 55, of New York city, was arrested here yesterday for a charge of absconding with $10,000 in George Washington Bridge toll receipts.

Vandevier said the suspect was arrested at a hotel where he was registered as A. G. Metcalfe. He had $880 in cash when taken into custody, the sheriff said.

At the time of his disappearance his wife said her husband had been unhappy over a transfer from a Staten Island post, regarding the move as a demotion. "My husband would rather die than take any money that did not belong to him," Mrs. Westbrook said. "And I should know. We have been married 35 years."

Carey Seems Loser In Write-in Drive

ALP Campaign Fails to Put Him Over Schneider

Incomplete returns filed with the Board of Elections today indicated that friends of Eugene B. Carey, Democratic candidate for mayor of the city, had been unsuccessful in a write-in campaign to have Mr. Carey designated as the American Labor Party candidate for mayor, over the party's regular nominee, Jacob J. Schreiber.

With thirteen of the twenty city districts having filed their report with the Board of Elections, Mr. Schneider, the regularly named nominee of the American Labor Party had 17 votes while Mr. Carey's name had been written in five instances. Mr. Schneider's name appeared on the primary ballot and each vote for Mr. Carey was cast by writing in his name.

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, Republican nominee, also received one vote when his name was written in on one Labor Party ballot.

Asked about the attitude in the middle west in relation to repeal of the arms embargo, Landon said he found "families are divided on it just as you find political parties divided."

As to sentiment for repealing the entire neutrality law, thus placing this country's dependence on international law, Landon said he found such sentiment usually was coupled with the belief that there should be some form of cash and carry legislation to protect this country.

Landon was closed with House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts and Eugene Meyer, Washington publisher, before the press conference. He had conferred with Senate Minority Leader McNary of Oregon on the train en route to Washington.

Ashokan Reservoir Is at Lowest Point Since 1926; Plenty of Water Remains

Ashokan reservoir is down to 80,000,000,000 gallons, the lowest point it has been since 1926 when the Gilboa reservoir was built, according to Joseph Goodman, commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, but the people of New York city need fear no shortage or rationing. Not only are the Ashokan and Schoharie reservoirs extremely low but the entire New York system is at the lowest ebb it has ever been since 1914 when the World War began.

New Partition of Poland?

Although not official, maps like this one, distributed from German sources at Cernauti, Rumania, show how high German circles are believed to favor creation of a "buffer" state from what remains of Poland and Germany and Russia have taken their "culls." Russia would get a "new Ukraine" and a "new White Russia" out of eastern Poland; Germany would get a strip in the west connected to East Prussia.

The defense ministry said the expeditionary force would consist of two war strength divisions of 16,000 men each.

They will be recruited by volunteers from the 50,000 men now under arms in Canada, the ministry explained. It was expected the first division would be ready for overseas service early in the new year.

A naval dockyard commander in Halifax, N. S., issued a statement saying "fairly reliable reports indicated that a submarine may have been operating off the Nova Scotia coast."

A Canadian destroyer engaged in a search for the suspected submarine, the commander said, and dropped a depth bomb "in a suspicious area." The effect was not known.

The government said it anticipated civilian pilots would cooperate with the Royal Canadian air force in meeting immediate demands for trained fliers abroad.

To maintain a constant supply of airmen the government authorized "a plan of intensified training."

The first aid requested by Britain in answer to Canada's offer of assistance, a government statement said, was facilitation of purchases of essential war materials.

Season Display Opens at 8 P. M.

Preview of Autumn Lines Will Attract Public

Sponsored by the Uptown Business Men's Association, the Annual Fall Opening Display takes place this evening when Kingston merchants will present a pre-season view of the latest in fall merchandise. Windows will be unveiled at 8 o'clock and from that hour until 10 o'clock the public is invited to inspect the displays.

The stores will not be open for business but each store participating in the contest will provide a suitable box where coupons may be deposited in the contest to determine who can come closest to fixing the actual retail value of the merchandise displayed in the window. All that is necessary to enter the contest for which valuable prizes will be awarded, is to look over the window carefully and then on a coupon provided you estimate of the retail value of the merchandise displayed. This slip with your name and address written thereon is then deposited in the box provided for that purpose and the person coming closest to the actual value will be awarded the prize offered by the individual store. Cards will indicate which windows are entered in the contest.

From 8 until 10 o'clock there will be a concert by Sal Cast's 20-piece band.

REV. LOUIS A. SMITH

The Rev. Louis A. Smith pastor of the Free Methodist Church on Tremper avenue has been transferred to the Methodist Church at White Haven, Pa., and will assume his pastorate there Sunday. He will leave Kingston Saturday.

Replacing him at the Tremper avenue church will be the Rev. D. F. Dimmick, who was the former district elder. The Rev. Mr. Dimmick will preach his first sermon Sunday morning.

This evening at 7:45 o'clock, the congregation will tender a farewell to the Rev. and Mrs. Smith in the parsonage at 155 Tremper avenue. All the church members and their friends are invited.

The Rev. Mr. Smith has been pastor here for three years, in which time he has doubled the membership of both the church and the Sunday School, besides building a new eight-room parsonage, which he is leaving free of debt. The condition of the church is the best it has ever been, the members say, with all bills paid to date, coal in the bin and the membership list increased beyond any point in the history of the church.

Dickinson's Belief

Toledo, O., Sept. 20 (AP)—Gov. Lureen D. Dickinson of Michigan believes "banishing of alcohol" would solve the problems of unemployment and relief. Money spent in the manufacturing of clothing, food and other "legitimate" articles would put four times as many persons to work as the same amount spent on the manufacture of liquor, he told the Women's Christian Temperance Union last night.

Simpson's Stand As 'Liberal' Gets Voters' Support

Republicans Also Choose Townsend Plan Advocate in 34th District; Not Much State Interest

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 20 (AP)—

Republican National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson's "liberal" policies stood vindicated today by party voters after a spirited challenge in New York county.

Failure of efforts to weaken Simpson, a member of New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, and the Republican nomination of a Townsend plan advocate in the 34th Congressional District was an outstanding result in yesterday's primary election.

Due to a new constitutional amendment increasing terms of assemblymen from one to two years there were few contests of state-wide interest and balloting was light. Exceptions were noted only when local or county contests were involved.

Simpson, who rose to political power in Manhattan's silk-stocking district, saw his county committee candidates sweep to nomination over those of Bronson Trevor, who criticized Simpson's local alliances with the American Labor party.

Says Vote 'Vindication'

Today Simpson asserted the "vindication of the progressive policies" he advocates.

Townsend Plan Supporter Edwin Arthur Hall, Binghamton councilman, defeated Broome County Republican Chairman Clarence L. Chamberlain for nomination for congressman from the 34th New York District to succeed the late Bert Lord of Afton.

Unofficial returns from all but 34 of the 286 districts gave Hall 15,794 votes to 12,581 for Chamberlain. Howard W. Smith, a third Republican candidate, polled 2,088 votes.

Townsend Club members concentrated on the Republican congressional race. John V. Johnson was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Snyder Condition Reported Serious

The condition of Lloyd Snyder, 21, who was seriously injured early Tuesday morning when a bucket dropped at Shaft 2, Hillsdale, town of Wawarsing, killing Ole Arvold, 52, of Wawarsing, was to-day reported as serious at the Benedictine Hospital. Snyder is under the care of Dr. John F. Larkin. He suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries.

Arvold was killed when the bucket used to convey tools suddenly dropped after the signal to hoist had been given. The bucket is said to have started up and without warning suddenly dropped back striking the two men who stood underneath. The two men were struck on the head. Arvold was so badly injured he died almost immediately but Snyder was brought to the Benedictine Hospital by the Humiston Ambulance Service. Arvold formerly lived on Staten Island and resided with his family at Wawarsing where they operated the Mother Hubbard Boarding House.

Buying Wave in Stocks Tuesday

Whatever may have been the cause, the stock market made an about face Tuesday, with gains equaling or better than the losses sustained in Monday's sharp drop. Industrials in the Dow-Jones averages, which lost 4.37 points Monday, yesterday showed a gain for the day of 4.36 points to 152.14. Rails more than regained ground lost Monday, being up 1.38 points to 32.19. The utilities did not do as well, comparatively, but closed yesterday with a gain of .49 point, to 24.74. Volume was 1,830,000 shares.

Some argue that it was Hitler's militant speech that started a buying wave, but the fact that industrial issues opened nearly a point and half above Monday's close, before Hitler's speech, would indicate that was not the sole reason for an advance. The recovery continued, with heaviest gains in later trading, and with the speech undoubtedly providing added stimulation and the so-called "war baby" stocks again coming into favor.

More attention is being paid to rails, particularly rail equipment stocks, these days as volume of traffic increases and expenditures totaling many millions of dollars for equipment repairs and replacements are planned. The RFC is said to be ready to advance any amount needed, on favorable terms, for equipment repair, with a program involving $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 being talked of.

Commodities were irregular with the index off 0.10 point for the day. Cotton futures reacted after gaining 83 cents a bale, and closed two points lower to three higher. There was a late recovery in wheat, which closed 4% cent lower to 4% cent higher. Corn was one to 1% lower. Wool top futures, in a total turnover of 2,000,000 pounds, were five to 17 points above the previous close. Rubber closed irregular.

In foreign markets, there was recovery on the Amsterdam Bourse and closing prices were at the day's best levels. Paris Bourse was heavy. London easier.

Aircraft plants are expanding. North American plans a 50 per cent increase in capacity.

As a protection against price advances, several leading farm implement manufacturers will book no business for delivery after January 1 at present quotations.

It is learned that French mission has approached American manufacturers of projectiles. Actual placing of order will depend upon the repeal of the embargo now in force.

American tire manufacturers have raised export prices on tires five to ten per cent. It is reported that increased business is coming from neutral countries and President O'Neill of General Tire said that business this month is as good as at any time in the company's history.

Earnings of Celanese Corp. for the present quarter are estimated at around 75 cents a share. Profits were curtailed by the strike at the company's Maryland plant, lasting several weeks. Plant is now running three eight-hour shifts.

International Nickel of Canada has received permission to pay 50 cent dividend on common in American dollars.

Wayne Pump reports net income of $866,718 for nine months ended August 31, equal to $2.30 a capital share. Compares with net of $833,382, or $2.87 a share, in the 1938 period.

Southern Pacific reports net operating income of $2,594,954 for August, vs. net of $2,643,045 in the 1938 month. For the eight months net operating income was $11,044,411 against $4,294,980 in the first eight months of 1938.

War Bulletins

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—War stocks encountered opposition on a forward drive today and the market gave up much of the ground won in early dealings.

Many traders cashed profits as steels, motors, chemicals and other groups extended the advance begun in the preceding session after Hitler's Danzig speech. But gains of fractions to more than a point were in the majority near the final hour.

Transactions set a pace of about 2,000,000 shares for a full session. British and French answers to the Hitler talk seemed to convince many Wall Streeters an early peace was unlikely. Trading forces, however, were inclined to maneuver cautiously until a closer view was forthcoming on the impending neutrality fight in Congress.

The Nazis have insisted the marshal, like other soldiers, should be forced to stay in the country to which he fled.

It was understood British and French diplomats had tried to induce the government to permit Smigly-Rydz to proceed to Paris with President Ignace Moscicki, Foreign Minister Jozef Beck, and other Polish civilian leaders.

Bucharest, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Rumanian government announced today Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, chief of Poland's secret service, would be interned in Rumania for duration of the European war, despite appeals from Britain and France.

Bucharest, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Rumanian government announced today Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, chief of Poland's secret service, would be interned in Rumania for duration of the European war, despite appeals from Britain and France.

The Nazis have insisted the marshal, like other soldiers, should be forced to stay in the country to which he fled.

It was understood British and French diplomats had tried to induce the government to permit Smigly-Rydz to proceed to Paris with President Ignace Moscicki, Foreign Minister Jozef Beck, and other Polish civilian leaders.

Music School To Open Branch

A Kingston Branch is announced by the Morris-Hummel Conservatory of Music, Albany, to be located at 80 Downs street, this city. This branch will be under the direction of Virginia Liebler, a resident of Kingston, who has been associated with the parent school. Mrs. Liebler is a graduate of the Oswego State Normal School and Cornell University. She studied piano with Eugene Heffley of Carnegie Hall, New York, Stuart Ross, Emma Willard Conservatory of Music, Troy, and Edward Morris, founder of the Morris-Hummel Conservatory. For seven years Mrs. Liebler was supervisor of public school music at Lawrence, L. I. In addition to teaching piano she specializes in Dalcroze Eurythmics, long recognized as an ideal approach to the study of music for children of pre-school age.

Students of the Kingston branch who are qualified will be presented at the regular conservatory concerts held on five Sunday afternoons during the season at the Albany Institute of History and Art.

Violin classes will be taught by Earle Hummel, concert master of the Albany Symphony Orchestra. Vocal instruction will be given by several members of the faculty.

The school is chartered under the Board of Regents of the state of New York. Registration is now open for the fall and winter term.

A series of informal recitals will be given from time to time this season at the Kingston branch by faculty members of the Morris-Hummel Conservatory. The first of these will be given in the near future by Edward French, concert pianist and associate director of the conservatory. Among others to follow will be Stanley Hummel, well-known piano-virtuoso, Earle Hummel, violinist and concertmaster of the Albany Symphony Orchestra, Snedden Weir, baritone and teacher, and Betty Roberge Weir, pianist. The family of Stanley and Earle Hummel will be remembered as former residents of Kingston.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 20, 1939.

JUST ANOTHER RACKET

Hardly a day passes in Kingston when one kind or another flim-flam game is not attempted, sometimes with success. Years ago Barnum said that there was "a sucker born every minute" but if he were living today he would revise his statement by saying that "there are not enough suckers born to supply the demand."

Within the last month residents of Kingston and vicinity have been approached by genial strangers who promise to remodel your home free of charge or take your picture free of charge. Before accepting as true any of the statements made by these doorbell ringers it would be well to get in touch with local business firms as to sponsorship and prices.

It often has been said that no one obtains anything worthwhile for nothing in this world, and it would pay to investigate thoroughly these "magnanimous" offers before acceptance.

Those who have been approached by a stranger recently claim that the "free offer" in regard to building was made because of the social contacts and the location of the house. Finally you may be asked to sign a paper which allows you to have your home remodeled without charge. Later you will learn to your sorrow that the paper you have signed is a contract and a note in which you have promised to pay from $350 to $600 to have the house remodeled.

Generally the genial doorbell ringer, who is making you glowing promises, is not even a resident of New York state, and the men he employs to do the work are also non-residents. In other words you are having work done by a concern of whom you know nothing and are sending your money out of town.

You are furnishing employment to outsiders while many capable Kingston men could use the money and are in a position to give you a first-class job.

Do not allow yourself to be influenced by a glowing sales talk. Investigate thoroughly every proposition before you take the final step, and never sign any paper until you are entirely familiar with the contents.

ORATORY

Congress, always oratorical, is sure to be more so than usual in the current special session. The crucial problems of neutrality and arms export offer far more than the usual incentive to violent speech.

It is hoped that everybody will be as calm as it is possible to be in such a situation, and not unduly rock the Ship of State. This remark applies to Congress, the executive department, the people at home, the newspapers and magazines they read, and the orators who appeal to them by radio.

The last item, perhaps, should be underscored, for radio broadcasting is potentially the greatest of all rabble-rousers.

Presumably all the important people involved in this national debate, in public life and in private life, are patriots, trying to do and say what they think best for their country. But there are many points of view and many temperaments.

The listening and reading public, which has the ultimate decision, may be able to keep calmer than the active participants. And it should particularly distrust oratorical noise as a substitute for reason. Wisdom usually speaks with a still, small voice after the tempest and whirlwind.

LONGER, HEALTHIER LIVES

Improvement in the general health of Americans and in their average length of life since the turn of the century is amazing and encouraging. In 1901 the normal life expectancy at birth was 48.23 years for white boys and 51.08 years for white girls. In 1937 those figures had changed to 60.75 and 65.08 years respectively.

This progress has been made in a single generation in the midst of happenings which might have been expected to produce quite different results. In those 36 years the United States participated in a great war. It suffered a severe influenza epidemic which took more lives than the war. It experienced the most far-reaching economic disturbance of generations.

These health-menacing factors were overcome by advances in medical knowledge and public health work, by emphasis on prevention of disease, by improvement in public sanitation, and so on. The health perils of the depression were recognized from the start and effective work was done to counteract them.

It is a fine record, and there is no intention anywhere of stopping the good work.

SCIENTIFIC WEALTH

Nations may not have to scramble and fight so much for natural resources hereafter, says President Karl T. Compton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Economic causes of war can be lessened by producing synthetically many of the materials heretofore obtainable only from natural deposits.

"To the extent that the scientist artificially produces petroleum, rubber, coal and other essential materials," he explains, "the need for employing armies and navies to acquire the world's natural resources will be removed." Scientific discovery and enrichment are limited only by the "capacity of our poor human minds."

Here is a reassuring note at a time when civilization needs encouragement. We may have such progress as Dr. Compton indicates if we use our scientific knowledge for constructive purposes rather than destruction. Given an era of peace, we might make astonishing gains along this line.

War chickens often come home to roost, and Russia seems ready now to take some under her wings.

Even the weather is upset lately; and some people blame that, too, on the war.

Thank Heaven, our boys and girls are only mobilizing for college.

Returning tourists agree that, be it ever so unexciting, there's no place like home.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

When you hear that a friend or acquaintance has had a nervous breakdown, you may wonder just what has caused it. You know him well; know that as far as hours of work is concerned he works about the same number as others.

What has caused the "nervous breakdown"? Behind every nervous breakdown and the physical and mental symptoms accompanying it lie conflicting attitudes, a big indecision, and the inability of the emotions to handle the situation properly. It is by having a nervous breakdown, by remaining away from his responsibilities, that the individual meets the situation. Certainly if he is sick, he can't be expected to work, to think, to plan, to meet responsibilities. It is the line of least resistance just to have a "nervous breakdown."

I am quoting from a book "The Psychology of Human Conflicts" by Dr. E. R. Guthrie, University of Washington.

Fortunately, the general practitioner or family physician has met so many of these cases that he knows how to cure most of them. He explains to the patient that he really has the breakdown because he is afraid or unable to make a necessary decision or handle some difficult problem or situation and he is taking this method—having a nervous breakdown—to get out of having to make the decision. Some patients will admit that the physician is right, but at first, most of them will not accept this truth, because a cure is the last thing they wish. Once they are willing to admit the truth of the physician's diagnosis (findings) of their case, the cure is under way.

However there is one point that is not emphasized in these cases of nervous breakdown and that is that the constant worry or anxiety, the sleepless nights, affect every organ in the body, particularly the liver, gall bladder, stomach and intestine. Poisons are not filtered out by the liver, the movements of the stomach and intestines are disturbed and may stop for minutes at a time, with the result that the blood contains too much wastes or poisons. These poisons affect the brain, the judgment, the fighting spirit of the individual and he just can't face the issue or issues at hand.

Neurosis

Are you afraid of some illness which medical tests do not reveal? Do you sometimes feel compelled to do things you know to be foolish? Send for this interesting booklet by Dr. Barton entitled "Neurosis" (No. 103) which explains how the "cure" of such conditions is accomplished. Send your request to the Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of service and mailing and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman. Other booklets available at ten cents each are: Eating Your Way to Health; Why Worry About Your Heart?; The Common Cold; Overweight and Underweight; Allergy or Sensitive-ness to Various Foods and Other Substances; Scourge (gonorrhoea and syphilis); How Is Your Blood Pressure?; Chronic Rheumatism and Arthritis; Cancer: Its Symptoms and Treatment.

Invitation to Landon and Knox Conforms to American Spirit of Nation First in Minds of Parties

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, Sept. 20.—National unity in time of crisis—a doctrine often preached, but not always applied—is the objective of the White House conference to which President Roosevelt, leader of the Democratic Party, invited the standard-bearers of the Republican party—Alfred Landon and Frank Knox.

Such a step conforms to the American spirit of subordinating partisanship and petty politics to the welfare of the nation, in critical times. Just now, that "welfare" consists of keeping America out of war. How to accomplish this purpose has provoked already some fundamental differences of opinion, not the least embarrassing of which is the tendency on each side to attribute wrong motives to those who disagree.

Thus, the advocates of the repeal of the arms embargo are accused of wanting merely to help Britain and France, whereas the defenders of the present law are held to be willing to see the democracies defeated by the dictatorships.

The suggestion that each side endeavor to look at the question from an American point of view, without taking sides, is heard frequently, but the public expressions from senators in both camps indicate how little heed is being paid to it.

Thus, Senator Borah of Idaho, leader of the pro-embargo faction, says in a published interview that Soviet Russia's invasion of Poland facilitates the restoration of peace, that Britain and France are, in effect, "pulling their punches" on the western front, and that there is something "phony" about the European war.

It would be natural for opponents of the Borah interview to point to the Berlin dispatches of today, identical with the Idaho senator's reasoning. The Nazis are urging peace, and asking naively what on earth the British and French could possibly be fighting for, now that their pledge to Poland has been unsuccessfully honored and Poland has been gobbled up.

The Nazis, like Senator Borah, have difficulty in crediting the British and French with sincerity. If Mr. Borah has been correctly quoted, he, too, fails to grasp the reasons why Britain and France, after having patiently submitted to a solemn pact at Munich, now see no chance of enduring peace with a German government headed by Herr Hitler, who, in a world-wide broadcast, promised that he would not seek one more inch of territory in Europe and then, a few months later, attacked and occupied Poland.

Mr. Borah has not the slightest sympathy with Hitlerism and is as violently opposed to dictatorship as any man in America today. Credence is lent to the theory by the fact that, although Mr. Baruch has offered to accept any position, however minor, to serve his country, the tender has not been accepted.

If America wants to stay out of war, the need for an enlarged and efficient national defense may become a bigger issue than the modification of the statute covering the export of war supplies.

Britain and France owe their present to unpreparedness. If America is not to depend for her defense on the British Navy or any other foreign instrumentality in both the Atlantic and Pacific, the debate of the next few months will decidedly turn on the advisability of a two-ocean navy and a 15,000-plane air force.

now on Mr. Borah believes that Britain and France should accept defeat and make peace at once, trusting that Hitler will not threaten their territory or possessions. On the other side of the controversy will be found many who believe that, if Hitler is not crushed, even though it takes a long war of attrition, America will be compelled to build the biggest navy and air force in the world and be ready to ward off threats from any European quarter.

If Britain is defeated, she will have no power to use her navy to protect America and she will not be concerned over the possible transfer of certain islands close to our Atlantic coast for bases, which subject is reported authoritatively to have been under discussion between Berlin and London in one of the numerous conferences on "appeasement" in recent years.

Nobody knows today except President Roosevelt what the basis of his message to the special session of Congress this week will be, but it is hoped in many quarters that Mr. Roosevelt will refrain from discussing the issues of the war itself and will lay the foundation for a return by Congress to the historic principles of international law governing the rights of neutrals in war time.

This means that all belligerents are treated alike by the exporting country and that risks of transportation and financial loss are primarily with the importers of munitions and contraband of war.

The Congress, whether or not urged to do so by the President, will begin to investigate the state of American preparedness. B. M. Baruch, head of the war industries board under President Wilson, says the United States is woefully unprepared to defend herself. He urged America to stay out of war, but to prepare intensively, so Hitler will not trifle with American interests. The British failed to listen to a similar appeal during the last several years from Winston Churchill, and, indeed, Herr Hitler warned Mr. Chamberlain last year that to take Mr. Churchill into the cabinet would be an unfriendly act. So, with respect to America, Herr Hitler's press attack on Mr. Baruch is believed to have kept the latter from being appointed to the war industries board here, though he knows more about industrial national defense problems than any other man in America today. Credence is lent to the theory by the fact that, although Mr. Baruch has offered to accept any position, however minor, to serve his country, the tender has not been accepted.

If America wants to stay out of war, the need for an enlarged and efficient national defense may become a bigger issue than the modification of the statute covering the export of war supplies. Britain and France owe their present to unpreparedness. If America is not to depend for her defense on the British Navy or any other foreign instrumentality in both the Atlantic and Pacific, the debate of the next few months will decidedly turn on the advisability of a two-ocean navy and a 15,000-plane air force.

Conway Attacks Upstate Politics In Cohoes Talk

Assemblyman J. Edward Conway was one of the speakers at a Republican rally and picnic held Sunday at Ukrainian Park, Cohoes, which was attended by about 1,200 Republicans from that area. On the program were also the Republican candidates for sheriff, surrogate, mayor of Cohoes and other local leaders including Kenneth MacAffer.

In his talk to the gathering, which was received with great applause, Mr. Conway urged the population of all Albany county to unite and protect the county against the abuses of the franchise. He referred to "political "corruption" which had been rampant for years in the county and called attention to the grand jury investigation and report in which 206 persons were indicted for voting frauds. While 206 were indicted over 1,000 cases he told the voters, and it was quite evident that in cases where investigation was made but no indictment resulted that it was because of lack of corroboration in at least 770 cases.

Assemblyman Conway said that the Grand Jury had recommended heavier curtains on voting booths, greater vigilance of the police and stricter supervision of so-called "boarding houses" from which many of the double registrations came. Mr. Conway pointed out the fact that last December when the Grand Jury investigation was authorized when Governor Lehman called this extra-ordinary term of the grand jury, that he had then stated that this investigation could not be an effective means of getting at the base of the evil and that only the small fry and pawns in the game would be reached.

Mr. Conway told his listeners that the result of the inquiry demonstrated to any fair-minded person the need of an investigation and clean-up of Albany county politics. Mr. Conway referred to his own attempt to have a legislative investigation of the county made where the investigation would not be bound by the rules of evidence as was a grand jury investigation but where all phases of the alleged illegal voting could be brought to light and all alleged corruption in political circles investigated.

Insofar as corruption in Albany county was concerned, he said, he had sought to end it in 1936 and again in 1939 he had sought to have an impartial investigation of all things made. In this he referred to his endeavor to have a legislative investigation made when he introduced such a resolution in the legislature.

"As for my part the battle will be over only when an investigation is made and Albany politics are clean," he told his audience.

"The battle has just begun and we have made substantial gains. It was in 1936 when we first raised our voices in protest. In 1939, Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for governor, gave it wide publicity and in 1939 the resolution for an investigation was carried in one house but lost in the second," he said.

"In the face of it I feel encouraged and am sure that the day will come when the legislature will direct a thoroughgoing investigation of these conditions in Albany county," concluded Mr. Conway.

Mr. Conway expressed great pleasure on the enthusiasm and will to win which was displayed in Cohoes Sunday and said that he felt sure that the party would come out victorious in November in that city. He said he had the assurance of the Republicans in Cohoes that because of greater vigilance on their part that there would be fewer violations this fall and that the city would have an honest election this fall.

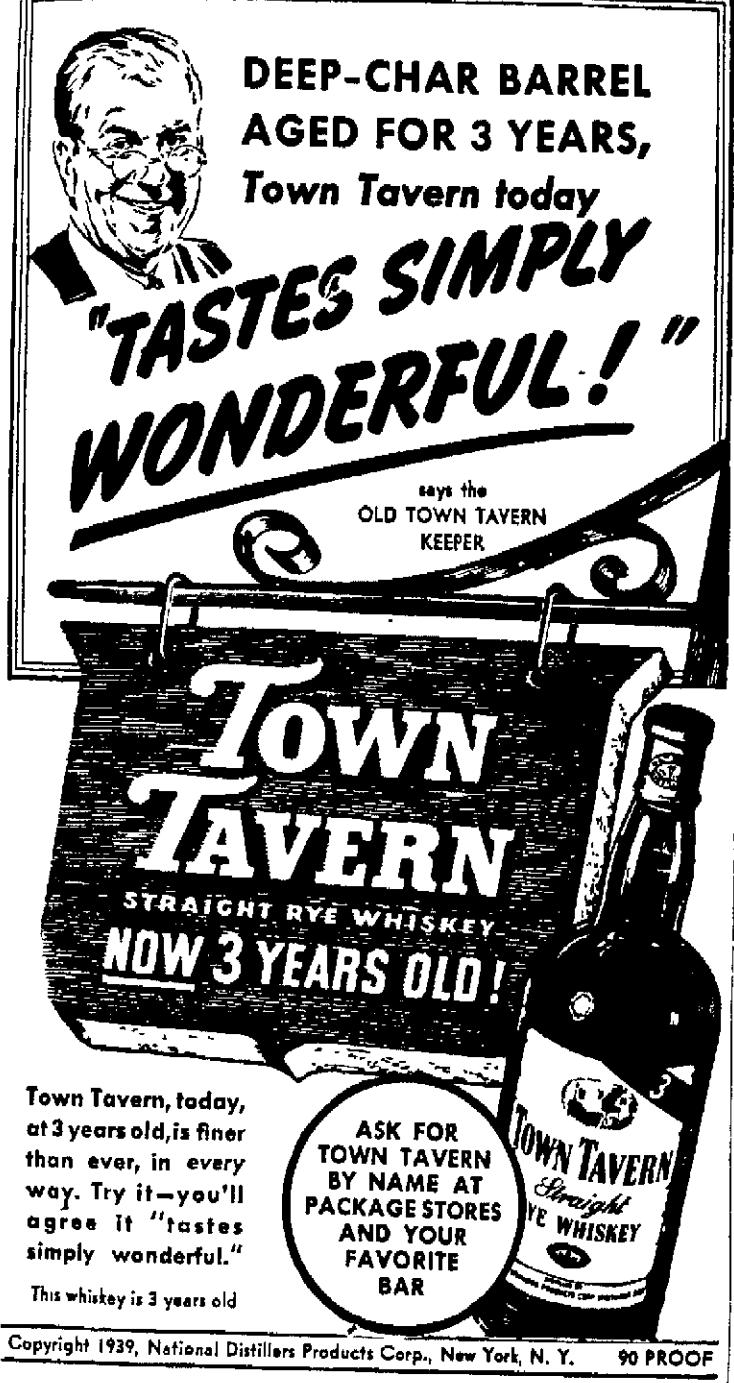

Assembly Conway also made definite reference to a "compromise" between parties. He said he felt it was inadvisable at any time to either retreat or compromise when faced by a political enemy for whom he had no respect, and urged that the Republicans of Albany county fight harder than ever though the odds seemed against them.

Cincinnati's Forty Twos
In the first half of the last century there was a club in Cincinnati called the Forty Twos. It was thus named because, when organized, it so happened that each of the men in the membership was past forty-two and not yet forty-three years old. Although it was more or less social, it did help develop a literary taste in the city. The club met in the law office of Salmon P. Chase. The latter, in after years, became secretary of the treasury in President Lincoln's cabinet and was appointed chief justice by the President when Chief Justice Roger B. Taney died in 1864.

If you had been born 21 years ago, your debt would have been only $90.59. This spending generation has taken a lot of your money. Get busy, baby, GET BUSY!

OK, I'll GET BUSY. I'll accept the obligation. I'll tighten my belt and do my part. If I don't—well, I've heard my dad talk about the wickedness of repudiation and the miseries of inflation. So, I'll try to pay.

And I'll not crab. I'll not question the expenditures, whether they were wasteful or unnecessary. They're water over the dam, anyway.

But, you grown-ups of this spending generation, don't put any more burden on our shoulders. Cut out this glib talk of how we can stand a "$55,000,000,000 national debt." Where do you get that "we" stuff?

Last year the national income was about $190 almost two years. It's five times the handicap this spending generation had when you were a baby.

Sure, I know, there are lots of things we'd like to have, but I notice that my pop has to say "No" to my brothers and sisters lots of times. "Can't afford it," he says. So, you big pops in Washington, learn to say "No" to the "brothers and sisters" who want you to buy things with my money. Tell them the truth, that we can't afford it until times get better. Maybe one reason times aren't better is because you've been spending too much of my generation's money.

Seed Is Available For Area Farmers

A total of 1958 acres of hay seed, which failed by reason of the drought, have been replanted in Ulster county through the medium of seed furnished by the federal emergency drought relief program.

Farms receiving benefit from the program number 254, the largest allotment being for 68 acres on a farm where there were 97 acres of new seedling this spring. The average allotment to a farm was $2145 and the cost of the program for Ulster county was $5,447.39, representing value of seed donated.

Seed distributed included 11,400 pounds of timothy seed, 9,500 pounds of alsike clover, 4,700 pounds of alfalfa and 3,850 pounds of red top.

A requirement was that the seed be planted by September 15. Later this year, by December 1, a representative of the Agricultural Conservation Association will inspect the plantings and see that the requirements have been carried out.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Lance Carroll drags Tim out of his shell. Their friendship helps Tim's standing in Boulder. After her parents leave, Buff enters into an active social life.

Chapter 15
Soapy Buffs

BUFF'S cozy apartment was filled with a laughing group of young people. Van, one of Buff's satellites, aroused Tim's disapproval at once.

"What do you do?" Tim asked him.

"I model in soap."

"You—what?"

"Model in soap. It's one of the newer arts. Soap is a softer medium than marble and—though this shouldn't be taken into consideration—less expensive. I'm doing a rather good thing of Buff now: three inches high, full length."

"Does she know it?"

The artist shook his head.

"My dear, no, and I hope you won't tell her: it ruins spontaneity to have the model conscious of posing. Here's a little and there a little—her upflung arm one day, her ankles another—"

Tim found the idea of this person's concern with Buff's ankles singularly repellent.

"What?" he demanded, "shall you do with your figure when it's completed?"

"Sell it. Oh, I always sell my things" he went on cheerfully.

"Not for anything like their true value, of course, but even a sculptor must eat. There's a gift shop in town which handles my work with some profit to us both."

"And how much do you expect to get for this—this masterpiece?"

"A dollar and eighty cents," sighed Van. "The shop takes the rest as its commission."

"Not this one," Tim spoke sharply. "So far as any figures of Miss Carroll are concerned, they're already sold to me."

The artist grinned and ran his fingers through his hair, increasing his appearance of artistic disengagement.

"Opens a nice little avenue for blackmail, if you get me! But Art comes first with me always. Before I execute your commissions—oh, joy and gladness, at last I'm using that longed-for combination of words!—I have to give you what you will do with the figure...es."

"Dissolve 'em in water!"

Van shook his head. "There goes a weekly payment on my grocery bill," was his mournful comment.

"I was afraid you were like that. D'you think I'm going to toil with skill and a paring knife for hours only to have you make a suds of Buff? Nay, not so, and no, no, Naa—"

"Then I'll keep 'em," Tim promised recklessly. "Not more than one a week, however; and aside from not destroying 'em, it's none of your business what I do with 'em. Is that perfectly clear?"

"Perfectly," Van scrambled to his feet and raised his voice, waving a long arm toward the soothsaying Tim. "Friends, behold my patron! I have a weekly commission from him—indeinitely. On the strength of funds to come I invite you all to eat scrambled eggs and salines with me now. Saturday night, I knew if I held on long enough success would surely come!"

Tim, feeling as though he had borne as much of this sort of thing as he could, departed abruptly.

In a few days a small box was delivered at his boardinghouse. It was plastered with labels, warning all beholders that it was "fragile," "Perishable," "Breakable," but its limsy container was little or no protection to the figure within. Tim took it out and viewed it carefully, hoping or fearing that several serious accidents en route accounted for its appearance. If it was as it had left the creator's hands, then Tim was paying two perfectly good dollars a week for practically nothing at all; for by no stretch of the imagination could Buff be recognized in the weird object thus disclosed. Beyond the fact that it was female and presumably human, it looked like nothing on earth.

"Booby Prize?"

WEEKES came in and found him staring at it.

"Booby prize at a baby party?" was his cheerful inquiry. "Soap, isn't it? I don't advise using it. Tim, you might cut yourself on all those sharp edges."

Tim put it on his closet shelf. "I think you're right, George. Don't be surprised if you see more of them appear. It's my way of contributing to the Community Chest, that's all."

He took occasion to make a tour of the gift shops in the town. In a window he found several of the soap figurines. Even while his surprised gaze rested on the display, a clerk's hand withdrew the most hideous. Presently a woman came out, bearing triumphantly a parcel which Tim was sure contained one of the VanLander masterpieces.

Tim wandered away in a trance.

"That makes three dollars and eighty cents he's earned—earned? good Lord!—this week. I suppose on the strength of it he will give several parties. And I thought Buff was a sensible girl!"

Sheer curiosity took him back to see her a few days later. He approached the subject of VanLander cautiously.

"I met an artist here last week," he told her. "Have you seen any of his work?"

He was relieved to hear her denial. "He's invited me up to his apartment to see a display of it, but I've been too busy to go. He says he's very successful, however."

"A sudden thought occurred to her. "Didn't I hear him announcing that you had become his patron? You must have been very favorably impressed by his work!"

Tim found himself in a dilemma. If he told her he was buying Van's productions in order to spare the shame of being exhibited in soap to the eyes of Boulder, she would naturally wish to see these presentations of herself. She was the daughter of Lance Carroll and really knew something about art.

Tim wondered whether her wrath would fall upon his head for presuming to find a likeness to her in Van's laundry writhings, or for his colossal ignorance in encouraging the artist in what amounted to criminal activity in soap.

"I ordered some of his things before I saw them," he said at last. "I had a reason for doing it. I wish now I hadn't. They're beyond words."

"How d'you mean—beyond words?" She was curled in a deep chair, one foot under her, her chin propped on her hand. She asked the question with interest.

"They're like something a backward four-year-old might do if you encouraged him sufficiently. I... was led to believe they were...—were otherwise."

Buff grinned at him. "Tim dear, you do need me, don't you realize it? What you're trying to say is that Van told you he was doing me, and intending to display the figures in a shop window. So you came nobly to my rescue by buying up in advance anything he chooses to whittle. You're simply putting a premium on that sort of silliness. Suppose a couple of watercolorists—and heaven knows the place is full of 'em!—confide to you that they're doing a profile, full face, or figure of me and intend to show their wares in a prominent place. Shall you immediately corner the market on all possible Buffs?"

"Male Clinging Vine"

HE muttered incoherently, once more thinking himself the world's worst idiot.

She said briskly. "I'll speak to Van myself. Hush, I shall, too! After all, you were my guest and he took advantage of you."

Tim's jaw squared. "Still bent on taking care of me, are you, Buff? I hoped you'd forgotten that foolish idea."

She put on her softest and most feminine expression.

"Tim, there's a gradet to the stove that neither Mrs. Webb nor I can understand. Personally, I'd just ignore it, but we by fears we'll be blown up in our beds some night. I wonder if you look at it and try to figure out what it's for?"

Presently he was tinkering happily with an oven thermometer which had temporarily forgotten its duties. By the time he had adjusted it, dinner was ready and Webb had set a place for him.

For one reason and another, he drifted into the habit of dining with Buff at least once a week, sometimes oftener. George usually accepted the invitation for him—also Tim could not quite rid himself of a sense of responsibility for this young girl who was staying in Boulder because of him, and had surrounded herself with a group of young people about whom he was a trifle dubious.

"That VanLander guy," George said thoughtfully one evening as they were driving out to Buff's. "He practically lives there, did you know it? He's a fool and Buff knows it; but he's leaning so hard on her that she's going all material and protective about him. She's a set-up for the male clinging vine."

"Tim, feeling as though he had borne as much of this sort of thing as he could, departed abruptly.

Tim, feeling as though he had borne as much of this sort of thing as he could, departed abruptly.

"Tim, I'll keep 'em," Tim promised recklessly. "Not more than one a week, however; and aside from not destroying 'em, it's none of your business what I do with 'em. Is that perfectly clear?"

"Perfectly," Van scrambled to his feet and raised his voice, waving a long arm toward the soothsaying Tim. "Friends, behold my patron! I have a weekly commission from him—indeinitely. On the strength of funds to come I invite you all to eat scrambled eggs and salines with me now. Saturday night, I knew if I held on long enough success would surely come!"

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, Sept. 19.—The musical course offered in the Marlborough Central School is again proving to be a popular subject. This term more than 120 pupils have already signed up for the instrumental instruction and 52 girls answered the first rehearsal for the Senior Girls Glee Club. Mr. Maroney, music instructor, is already planning for the organization of a school band. This will be in addition to the orchestra which was formed two years ago. The band will have about 40 members.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Ulster county will gather in the Marlborough Central School on Thursday, October 26, when a meeting of the county unit is scheduled to be held. The meeting, an all day affair, will be held in the auditorium of the school. An interesting program for the day is being prepared, and there will be several speakers, including Ralph Johnston of New Paltz, district superintendent. Mr. Johnston will speak on "What P.T.A. in the County Can Do to Cooperate With School." The Italian classes of which Miss Ann Barber is in charge, will be included in the program. The local unit will act as hostesses to the representatives of the various county associations attending the meeting.

School tax collections in the Marlborough Central School district will be started Wednesday, September 20, by Mrs. Carl Andrews, tax collector. The tax rate this year is $24.116 a thousand and the total assessed valuation of property in the district is $1,461,409. The following dates and places are for the collection of taxes: September 20, Marlborough Bank from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.; September 27, Milton Bank, from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.; October 4, Gasparoli's store, Lattington; October 11, Milton Bank; October 19, Marlborough Bank. On all other days taxes may be paid Mrs. Carl Andrews at her home. The tax book will be in her possession until December 1, when they will be turned over to the county treasurer.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Overtime

Salem, Mass.—James Donovan, 68, of Merrimac, hit by one automobile and then run over by another, died yesterday.

A court report filed by Auditor Fred J. Cloutman disclosed that one of the car which knocked down Donovan had settled for $2,975. In the report, Cloutman further awarded Donovan $1,525 in a suit against the woman who drove the car that ran over him.

Bargain
Oil City, Pa.—Want to buy a bridge?

There's one over the Allegheny river that the Keystone Public Service Company wants to sell. So far they haven't been any takers.

The price is a dollar.

Old Shoes
Dutton, Ark.—Q. Z. Wist, who runs the general store and post office, has a lot of oxen shoes he's got to get rid of.

He stocked them when oxen were used in the timberlands, but that was long ago. Tractors are used now.

Four for One
Wewoka, Okla.—"Bat" Ingram sacrificed four offices for one.

Appointed deputy sheriff he resigned as Wewoka's fire chief, town marshal, water superintendent and street commissioner.

Offside
Iowa City, Ia.—Coach Eddie Anderson's demand for more speed from his University of Iowa football squad evidently made a deep impression, at least on Nile Kinnick, star left halfback.

Kinnick's automobile driver's license was suspended for 13 days by the police department after he was clocked at 40 miles an hour in a 25-mile zone.

Well Done, Men
Minneapolis.—Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Garritsen were en route to a hospital for a blessed event when their car broke down. Garritsen called police. Sympathetic squad car officers raced Mrs. Garritsen to the hospital with the siren shrieking.

The baby was born an hour later and the officers proudly printed on their report, in large letters, "we made it!"

NEW HURLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powell called on his brother, John Powell, at Leptondale on Sunday afternoon.

Ralph Sherwood left here last week for Boston, Mass., where he entered Northeastern University for a civil engineering course.

Miss Helena Sutton of Philadelphia and nephew, Matthew Gummerson, spent Monday afternoon with their aunts, Mrs. Edward Powell and Miss Bertha Sutton.

The services in the New Hurley Reformed Church next Sunday morning, September 24, at 11 o'clock, will be in charge of Dr. J. A. Thurston, who will take for his subject "Formulas." Sunday school will be held at 10:30 o'clock. Crosby Wilkin, superintendent. Everyone is invited.

The Ladies' Aid Society will serve a chicken supper in the church hall at Sherwood's Corners on Wednesday evening, October 11. Keep this date in mind and plan to come.

A meeting of the consistory of the New Hurley Church will be held at the Walkill Reformed Church parsonage Friday evening, September 22, at 8 o'clock.

Charles Lester, Jr., left last week for Pratt Institute, where he is enrolled as a freshman.

John Froemel of Bloomfield, N. J., spent last Monday and Tuesday in Marlborough and attended the funeral of Victor Froemel.

Miss Margaret Quimby has resumed her duties as teacher in Suffern after a vacation spent at her home here and a long motor trip in Canada and around the Gaspe Peninsula.

Miss Carolyn Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryan left on Monday for Houghton, where she is enrolled at Houghton College.

You have a beauty all your own, as mellow as the ripened fruit, more fascinating than the turning leaves, more friendly than the scurrying creatures of Nature, whose hibernation symbolizes the early darkening days ahead. Your beauty, Fall, is more vigorous than the pastel loveliness of your sister Spring . . . more restful than the active Summer . . . more companionable than Winter, who shuts us in our houses, and blankets the earth and all things that grow with her mantle. You are a woman of maturity, full bosomed and tawny haired. You walk over the land scattering the things that have grown, for men to eat with relish, and to store away against the coming of your less amiable sister whose fingers offer a chill caress to the earth. You are welcome Fall—with the blue grapes from the vine, and the threshed wheat and tasseled corn. These things will not grow until another year, but your coming has laden our table with their goodness, so that we may feel—when Winter comes, she too will be welcome, for Fall has given us plenty, with which to be hospitable.

This tribute to the new season, comes from the stores in this city which are prepared to outfit you and your homes with everything new, fine and worth buying. Be as posted on fashion as the buyers of the store in which you shop—through the fashion information you gather when you attend a Style Showing. They've planned their shows so you will know what's going on in the world of style for yourself, your family, and your home.

Joe Louis Favored to Whip Bob Pastor Tonight by 7-1

Detroit, Sept. 20 (AP)—After a lapse of nearly three years, Champion Joe Louis tonight resumes his chase after the little imp who once eluded him and injured his pride.

He and Bob Pastor meet at Briggs Stadium, home of the Detroit Tigers, before a crowd that is expected to reach the 40,000 mark, and this time the feeling is that the big negro will catch and pulverize his quarry.

This time he will have 20 rounds in which to corner his man, instead of the 10 they fought in Madison Square Garden before Louis became champion. He will have an advantage of about 15 pounds in weight, and is a greater fighter in every respect than he was when free-wheeling Bob held him to a hollow decision.

Louis has been angry at Pastor for nearly three years. He has felt all that time that the New York boy made a sucker out of him, and he has yearned to get Bob in the ring with him again. He has worried his managers and Promoter Mike Jacobs half to death about it.

And tonight, before the home folks, he finally gets his chance to close out that account. He fully intends to knock Pastor kicking in the first round. Bookmakers around town are offering odds of 7 to 1 against Pastor's chances, and doing practically no business at all.

Pastor does have a chance, of course. He is young, is an exceptionally clever boxer and hits pretty well. Last night, sitting around the hotel and talking, he said he thought he might knock Louis out. His manager, Jimmy Johnston, said it was a cinch.

"All right, you wise guys," Johnston said, "just remember that I told you what was going to happen to this great champion. Louis has been trapped ever since he agreed to fight us 20 rounds. He'll be worn out about half way, and then watch Bob work on him."

It could happen, one supposes. After all, Jim Braddock was even a longer shot against Max Baer.

But it is necessary to string two along with Louis, in about two rounds. He hits terribly hard.

Hercules Keglers

Start Thursday

The Hercules Inter-plant Bowling League gets under way Thursday night with eight teams.

Each year every bowler fights for a spot in the first six positions so he can be eligible to bowl in the City League with the Hercules team.

The Hercules City League team this year consists of Chick Maurer, Joe Dulin, Possum Avery, Bill Anderson, W. Hutton and Ken Newell.

These men were high average bowlers in the 1938-39 Hercules League campaign.

Each year more interest is being shown in the Powdermen's League. This year five new men have entered.

Scribes' Opinions Of Louis, Pastor

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20 (AP)—Joe Louis to flatten Bob Pastor by a knockout in less than a dozen rounds—that's the consensus of the newspaper experts here from all sections of the country to cover tonight's world's heavyweight championship battle.

Only two of the writers polled—Jack Miley of the New York Evening Post and Al Buck of the same paper—picked Pastor.

John Edward Wray, sports editor of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, and dean of the writers here for the fight: "Louis to win in 11 rounds by a knockout."

James P. Dawson, New York Times: "Louis in ten rounds."

Sid Feder, Associated Press: "Louis in three rounds."

Charles Johnson, Minneapolis Star-Journal: "Louis by a K. O."

Caswell Adams, New York Herald-Tribune: "Louis to win in four rounds."

John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "Louis in six rounds. He'll catch up to Pastor within that time."

Wilfred Smith, Chicago Tribune: "Louis by a knockout in six rounds."

Jack Cuddy, United Press: "Louis to win."

Jack P. Ward, Boston American: "Louis after 12 rounds."

Detroit Free Press: "Louis in five rounds."

Hi Hurwitz, Boston Globe: "Louis in eight rounds. See Taylor Des Moines Register: "Louis in five rounds."

W. W. Edgar, Detroit Free Press: "It wouldn't surprise me if Louis won in the first round."

Edward W. Cochrane, sports editor Chicago Herald-American: "Louis in 12 rounds."

Howie Igoe, New York Journal American: "Louis in ten rounds."

Johnston said, "just remember that I told you what was going to happen to this great champion. Louis has been trapped ever since he agreed to fight us 20 rounds. He'll be worn out about half way, and then watch Bob work on him."

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

The accepted theory among big league managers in recent years has been that the best bet for stopping the New York Yankees is to feed them left-handers.

This theory has a certain amount of justification in the records. Since the Cincinnati Reds already are accepting ticket orders for next month's World Series, it also must have entered the mind of Manager Bill McKechnie.

But how long it stayed there is something else again. When it comes to effective southpaws, Manager Bill is about as well-equipped as Poland is with submarines.

He tried to get by with one again yesterday, and the results were sad indeed. McKechnie called on Johnny Vander Meer to face the Phillies, but Double-nose didn't face them long. He pitched to three men and filled the bases, threw three bad ones at the next batter, and promptly was through for the afternoon.

So went the Reds. They never got out of that hole, lost the ball game, 13-1, and since the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-1, had their first-place margin reduced to two and a half games.

The Cincinnati southpaw situation is a sorry one. Since August 9, Vander Meer has been entrusted with a starting assignment only twice. McKechnie had so little faith in him yesterday he had Johnny Nigeling warming up in the bullpen as soon as Vander Meer started. Lefty Lee Grissom hasn't been any help, either. Grissom hasn't started a game in a month when the pressure on the Reds was heaviest.

McKechnie has two further worries. His inner defenses are shot full of holes—seventeen errors in the last five games—and the batting punch is nothing to brag about. Against the Phillies, Walt Higbe, the Redlegs made just six hits.

The Cards got fine pitching yesterday from an unexpected source. Max Lanier, rookie southpaw who has been up before, gave Brooklyn five hits, while his mates pounded out 14

Central Recreation Bowling Loop Will Start October 3

Blackout

Fighter Lou Nova bore this impressive souvenir of his meeting with Tony Galento, as he left the hospital in Philadelphia en route to witness the Louis-Pastor fight in Detroit.

At the meeting of the Central Recreation Bowling League last night to make plans for the coming season, 12 teams registered to start campaigning on Tuesday night, October 3, at 7 o'clock.

President Charles Tiano announced that the schedule would call for contests every Tuesday at 7 and 9 o'clock, and requested that entry fees be in by September 26, which was set as the deadline.

The league will roll two complete rounds, under the rules of the American Bowling Congress, and then the first and second divisions will engage in a Shaughnessy playoff. The loop will operate on the cash basis, the same as the City and Silver Palace Leagues.

The 12 teams in the league are: Hotel Ulster, Nick's Torsorial, Al Katz, Morgan Linen, Morgan Social, Crystal Gardens, Dawkins Grocers, Mickey's Barber, Dave Levy's, Lou Glenn's, Jake's Lunch, and A. & P. Stores.

New York's Sag Harbor

Was Indian Village Site

When white men settled on Long Island in 1649 the site of the present Sag Harbor was an Indian village Wegwagoneck, meaning at the foot of the hill. The English colonist first called the place Great Meadows. The settlers of Sagg, or Sagaponack, needed a landing. Roads were cut through the forest from Sagg, five miles to the south, leading to Great Meadows. For many years the place was known as "the harbor of Sagg" and the first known mention of this new port of Sag Harbor was made in 1707.

Sag Harbor was once a great whaling port. Today it combines the old with the new. There are fine schools and churches, one of which is the "Whalers church." A library built and endowed by Mrs. Russell Sage in memory of her grandfather, Maj. John Jermain, and a park also given by Mrs. Sage, are among the harbor's attractions.

Sag Harbor has all the facilities for yachtsmen. The harbor has just been dredged by the federal government to a channel depth of 16 feet.

Silver Palace League Opens At Emerick's Alleys Tonight

The Silver Palace Bowling League opens this week, the Silver Division starting tonight and the Purple Division Friday.

Secretary Clifton Quick says the Kalamazoo, last season's champions of the Silver Division, will have competition at the Emerick Academy on Albany avenue right from the start because all the teams are anxious to take the pennant this year.

The Friday night or Purple Division is made up of these teams all batting against the Central Lancers, last year's champs: Millards, Empire Liquors, Vining and Smith, Garland Laundry, Ulster Foundry, Texas Restaurant and Vogel's Dairy.

Secretary Clifton Quick has announced this week's schedule as follows:

Silver Division Tonight

Spinnys vs. Craft's Market. Chick and Gil vs. Kalamazoo.

Purple Division Friday

Plenty of Grid Stars on Horizon

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Since the football season is at hand again, remember little Davey O'Brien, Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg, Parker (Bullet) Hall and Johnny Pingel?

They made up the All-America backfield last fall, and they'll probably be heard of again as heroes of play-for-play football. But unless you follow the fortunes of the pros, it's likely you'll only see their names this fall prefaced by "as good as" or some similar comparative phrase.

There's a new crop of All-Americans in the making. The college press agent who hasn't a candidate, usually with a colorful nickname, is as rare as a college coach without an alibi. So you'll see and hear new names in place of that familiar quartet and the fellows who pressed them for top honors last fall—Bullet Billy Patterson, Sid Luckman, Vic Botta, Broncho Brunner, Bob MacLeod and Howie Weiss, to name a few.

There's no use trying even at this stage to pick the rising stars, but there are plenty of hints as the press releases roll in.

No doubt, you'll hear a lot this fall about Len Eshmont, who as a Fordham sophomore last year carried the extra weight of such names as "Rambling Ram" and the "Atlas Antelope."

Then Columbia offers Les Stenzky, third of his clan to play for the Lions, as the lad who'll make eastern fans forget Sid Luckman's passing. The relayed words of one observer are "he cuts like Cliff Montgomery and runs with all the power of Al Barabas."

Texas Christian already has picked the halfback to fill O'Brien's shoes. He's Jack Odle, hailed as being better than Davey or Sammy Baugh were at the same stage of their careers. Pitt has some good backs, but not another Goldberg. It seems unlikely Michigan State will produce another Pingel or "Ole Miss" another Hall, although Merle Hapes is trying his best at the latter job.

Chalk Leaves Screech

Remember when the bad boys in school used to give the teacher a nervous shock by producing a spine-shrilling screech with fingernail or chalk on the blackboard? That noise is going the way of the hickory switch as a forgotten horror. A new type of blackboard known as optex, made of glass reinforced with wire, has a velvet-like writing surface which eliminates wear and tear on nerves in addition to reducing eye-strain through the elimination of mirror-like reflections.

Southern Cal Set to Repeat Pacific Conference Triumph

By SAM JACKSON

AP Feature Service Writer
San Francisco—Southern California in the Rose Bowl, Stanford and Washington fighting for second.

That's the consensus of coaches, writers and sideline observers on the Pacific Coast Conference race. At Los Angeles, the worst they can say about Howard Jones and his Trojans is that "they have their share of problems." The chief problem, the Angelenos admit, is whether to send individual limousines for the U.S.C. stalwarts or take them to the Rose Bowl in the conventional buses.

It would be Southern California's fifth ride to the Bowl in a decade. U.S.C. has played—and won—four such games, the last being the 1939 victory over Duke. Acknowledgement of Trojan power is apparent clear up to Seattle, where it is recorded: "Coach Jimmy Phelan of Washington, like almost everybody else, picks U.S.C. to finish on top."

Take a peek at that Southern California power. Granville Lansdale, Mickey Anderson and Bob Hoffman, who's running ahead of Captain-Elect Joe Shell at left, all are back behind the line. Doyle Nave, the gentleman remembered especially by Duke for tossing four last-minute passes to dump the Devils in the Rose Bowl game, is on hand and so is Al Krueger, the gent who caught those flings.

Krueger has three first-string pals at his end position and it's that way at most of the line posts. Just to make the picture rosier, a flock of freshman power moves up to the varsity this year.

A good body of lookers-on says to keep an eye on Washington. In 1938 the Huskies were highly touted, but managed only to tie for fifth in a conference of eight teams.

Not So Much Meaning

All along the coast there is less tendency to cry on people's shoulders than in the average year.

Stanford admits good material, but says the boys are rather green. Coach Tiny Thornhill has a brilliant Rose Bowl record, but has fallen into a tough string recently.

Oregon's prospects are "definitely better." Tex Oliver, in his second year with the Webfeet, will have 18 letter men back.

California reports "unusually strong recovery, following heavy losses from last year's squad."

Hirshberg Wins GOP Nomination

Newburgh, N. Y., Sept. 20 (UPI)—Orange County District Attorney Henry Hirshberg, who campaigned against the county's present special grand jury investigation of "vice, gambling and official corruption," won the Republican nomination to succeed himself in yesterday's primary election.

Unofficial results from 97 of the county's 110 districts gave Hirshberg 10,683 and his opponent, William F. Stanton, Newburgh lawyer, 5,593.

Hirshberg, superseded by Governor Lehman who ordered the probe last January, charged during the campaign that the investigation was "futile and needlessly expensive." Stanton criticized the district attorney and favored the investigation from the start.

The special grand jury has returned 70 indictments, mostly charging gambling. Special Assistant Attorney General Raymond P. Whearty said he expected the first of the cases to be moved for trial next week.

First defendants, Whearty said, would be John J. Coyle president of the Newburgh Food Merchants Association, and Oscar G. Massie, a grocer. Both were accused, he said, of conspiring to pay a percentage of their monthly relief food order income to Newburgh Welfare Superintendent John L. Sloan, who is also under indictment.

Sutton Case Reported Settled

One case was announced settled this morning in county court and Judge Wilson of Orange county, presiding judge, recessed court until next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

An action on contract, G. H. Sutton and J. R. Sutton, doing business as Sutton Brothers, against Jonah Rhodes, was settled. Michael Nardone for plaintiff and H. A. Lent for defendant.

Among the cases marked settled was a property damage action brought by Lloyd Embree against Selma Porter and Richard A. Porter. A. J. Cook for plaintiff and Turner & Murphy for defendants.

Buley Is Victor In Shandaken

In the second district of Shandaken Leon B. Buley, who filed a designation petition designating himself as candidate for member of the Republican County Committee, won out over the regularly designated candidates, George W. Beekman and James Lyons.

Buley received 53 votes yesterday at the primary election. Beekman was second with 32 votes and Lyons trailed with 30. This give Buley and Beekman the high mittelemen.

One of the easiest sports to establish in the backyard is quoits, or horseshoe pitching.

Church Club Meets

The Junior League of Trinity

M. E. Church held its first session this afternoon at 4 o'clock with Miss Hester Marsh, superintendent.

An interesting social hour will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at Trinity Church when those present will relate their experiences in investing the dollar loaned by the church of officials.

Monroe Burger will preside.

On Thursday evening the first quarterly conference of the church will be held with the Rev.

Dr. J. W. Chasey, district superintendent, presiding. Each organization is asked to present a brief report of its plans of work for the coming months.

Buenos Aires Racket

With the arrest of four men in Buenos Aires, a racket that had for its object a large-scale fleecing of taxpayers has been broken up.

The racketeers after establishing offices hired a staff of agents and equipped them with fake official notebooks bearing the national arms of Argentina.

Persons behind in their payments of inland revenues were interviewed. After inquiring the amount of capital each business worked with and how much the average monthly receipts amount ed to, the agents offered to intervene in the settlement of the obligations, charging fees that ranged from $5 to $50. About $3,000 had been collected before the racket was discovered and stopped.

We'll Not Surrender

Every one of the speakers who alternated at the Warsaw microphone declared "We will not surrender." The station remained on the air throughout the night. Most

Big question mark on the changing European map became the future of the Baltic states of Estonia and Latvia and Lithuania—following Copenhagen reports that Russia's navy had blockaded the Estonian coast, and other indications that Russia intended to dominate the north Baltic. Meanwhile, Germany moved reinforcements to the West, with indicated partitioning of defeated Poland outlined as:

A—Germany; B—Polish buffer state; and C—to Russia.

Historians Enjoy Fall Pilgrimage

Historians Enjoy Fall Pilgrimage

Members of the Ulster County Historical Society who, to the number of between 40 and 50, participated in the seventh annual fall pilgrimage of the society Tuesday, report it a most delightful affair.

Between the speeches, rousing Polish marches were played. As the night wore on, it became apparent the announcer had been instructed at half-hour intervals to read, in Polish, French and English, the mayor's message asking when allied help would reach Poland.

The massing of Russian troops along the Romanian border cut the stream of refugees from Poland, but thousands, finding their way barred on that border, poured into Hungary. Soldiers among them were disarmed, and civilians were sent to special camps.

A Hungarian agency estimated

30,000 civilians and 10,000 soldiers had reached the Romanian border town of Cernauti before the Soviet lines were drawn.

15th Day of Siege

Polish broadcasts from Warsaw entering the 15th day of siege, presented a graphic picture of a city whose defenders had vowed to resist the Germans to the death and seemed to be doing it.

"Warsaw will resist," said a communiqué read over the capital's radio station last night. "We have confidence in our government and confidence in our great all

COOLER*Memorandum*Marine Strike Affects Liner

New York, Sept. 20—(AP)—The six-day-old marine strike extended today to the U.S. liner Washington, one of the largest vessels engaged in returning stranded Americans from Europe.

Demands by striking seamen for a bonus, $10 a month pay increases and war risk insurance for plying waters patrolled by European belligerents have kept six other American vessels from sailing since last Friday.

A spokesman for the U.S. Lines said the Washington, scheduled to leave today with 800 passengers, would sail Friday instead.

"We postponed the sailing to await strike developments," he said.

From other sources, however, it was learned crew members of the Washington, which docked Monday with 1,746 passengers transported from the war zone, had refused to sign on until the issue of extra compensation was settled.

Other ships held up by the strike are the American trader, the American Traveler, the Scanstates, the Iroquois, Excambion and the Black Gull.

With thousands of American citizens abroad clamoring for passage home, the trip daily has become more serious, particularly in view of the shortage of passenger vessels available for returning stranded citizens of neutral powers.

Trial of 61 striking crew members of the American Trader for refusing to obey their skipper's command to take the vessel to sea continued before the U.S. Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation.

Witnesses testified huge crates of machinery lashed to the ship's docks might have been mistaken for guns by submarines at a distance.

Presbyterian Planning For Busy Winter Season

Plans for an active fall and winter season were made Tuesday evening at the opening fall meeting of the Men's Club of the Rondout Presbyterian Church.

During the past summer the club sponsored the successful project of purchasing new hymn books for the church. Charles Terwilliger, chairman of the committee, made a brief report on what the committee had accomplished.

It was decided to hold the next club meeting on Tuesday evening, October 17, in the chapel when there would be movies and music.

Charles Terwilliger was named chairman of the refreshment committee for the meeting.

An interesting program is also being arranged for the November meeting of the club.

To Meet With Pastor

This evening the officers, teachers and older scholars of the Rondout Presbyterian Sunday School will meet at the home of the Rev. D. Linton Doherty on Broadway to discuss plans for the fall and winter. Last Sunday a men's Bible class and a woman's Bible class were organized in the Sunday School with the pastor and his wife as teachers.
